SUMMARY OF MESSAGE

Tonight we are starting a new series called “IDK.” This series will look at three big topics that we are calling potential faith killers. The reason we call them that is because they are topics, that when encountered, people run the risk of questioning or doubting what they believe. Tonight we are looking at the topic of science and faith. We want students to understand that science and faith are not necessarily at odds with each other. While they will be forced to believe one or the other tonight we are explaining that science can be a support to faith. Our goal is for students to leave tonight looking at science and saying, “Oh that is how God did it.”

QUESTIONS FOR SMALL GROUP

1. How have you been challenged by the conversation of science and faith?
2. How do you think science plays into faith?
3. What are some things you could do to feel confident in the conversation of science and faith?
4. How can we as a group help each other be ready for those conversations?
